

Christina Delasi

Christina is a real estate and business lawyer with more than a decade of experience representing major corporations and real estate developers. Her practice focuses on representing market-rate and affordable housing developers who are converting properties to condominiums and coops.

Christina graduated from Haverford College and then received a law degree in 2002 from Fordham University School of Law where she was a member of the Fordham Law Review. She then joined the New York office of Willkie Farr & Gallagher LLP where, for five years, she litigated complex commercial cases for some of the world's largest companies and financial institutions. Thereafter, Christina joined Bloomberg Law, a start-up venture at Bloomberg, LP. She wrote extensively about securities law developments for users of the Bloomberg terminal and bloomberglaw.com, and eventually became Editor of Bloomberg's Securities Law Report, a weekly newsletter. She played an integral role in the launch of Bloomberg Law's website, which received the 2012 New Product Award from the American Association of Law Libraries, and managed a team of securities lawyers creating content for the site's Securities Practice Center.

Special Counsel
New York City
cdeiasi@goldsteinhall.com
646.768.4166

Expertise

Affordable Housing and Community Development
Cooperative and Condominium
Law
Not-For-Profit Law

Bar Admissions

State of New York
United States District Court Eastern District of New York
United States District Court Southern District of New York
United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit

Education

Fordham University School of Law, J.D., 2002
Haverford College